least it should be. At Archway Glendale our mission is to form hearts and minds in virtue and truth. To elaborate, we exist to teach students how to be good and how to learn, think, and read, and love doing it – now – and for a lifetime!

We partner with you, our parents, and in so doing it is not just students that learn, but all of us. We learn how to be better persons, comparing ourselves to who we were yesterday and not to who someone else is today, seeking to become better and even the best version of ourselves. We get to do all this together – parents, children, teachers, staff! What a privilege and what a challenge!

The secret is if we trust each other and embrace the challenges, if we speak the truth in love and hold each other accountable to our mutual commitments, we will see (as we already have) marvelous results.

So the strengthen support for student success tip this week is: Persevere! Let's make the most of every day and every minute we have left in this precious school year of learning! Let us together keep loving and living the truth.
